Descorchados Guide 2012 Best Late Harvest

“When Pablo Morandé harvested the grapes for his late harvest in the year 2000, he realised that they had potential. That wine, the first of the two Golden Harvest vintages, was an immediate success. Today, seven harvests later, Morandé achieves it once again with this white that is more like honey than wine. Nature is not always on our side, so we have to take advantage when its mood is sweet enough to give us wines this impressive.” Patricio Tapia.

Casablanca Valley Chosen

“Also chosen as the best of the Casablanca Valley this year, the second edition of Golden Harvest (the first was a result of the harvest in the year 2000) has no less than 222 grams of sugar per litre, but also a penetrating acidity that manages to balance that quarter-kilo of pure sweetness. Also, of course, it is made entirely of grapes attacked by the botrytis fungus, the “noble” rot that is responsible for the best sweet wines in the world and also for this honey-wine.” Patricio Tapia.

La CAV Guide 2012 Best Late Harvest

“Deep golden colour, almost amber. Intense aroma of quince, apricots and peaches in syrup. Intense in the mouth - very sweet. Good weight”. Ricardo Grellet.

Edición Limitada Golden Harvest Sauvignon Blanc 2007

This exclusive wine from the Edición Limitada range is only produced in those years when the Sauvignon Blanc grapes of the Casablanca Valley are affected 100% by the noble botrytis cinerea fungus: a situation that has occurred only in the harvests of 2000 and 2007.
